DETAILED ACTION

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

2. Claims 1, 3, 4, 5, and 7-11 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Misage et al (4,781,241).

Misage et al discloses the claimed method of recovering energy including providing a multiple circulation path integrated heat exchanger, providing a first working fluid (at 14) on a finned exterior side of the heat transfer device, feeding a second working fluid (at 28) into a second interior circulation path to be heated or cooled by the first fluid, providing a third fluid circulation path (at 58) to be heated or cooled by the first working fluid, and interweaving the second and third fluid flow paths (see Fig. 1) to achieve more efficient heat transfer, the first and second working fluids having different compositions.

3. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

4. Claims 2 and 6 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Misage et al (4,781,241) in view of Craig (2,735,660).

Misage et al, as discussed above, discloses the claimed method with the exception of the first and third fluids being the same.

Craig discloses an energy recovery method in which a fluid flowing over the exterior of heat exchanger tubes (18) is also passed through the interior of heat exchanger tubes (24) in order to recover energy.

It would have been obvious in view of Craig to pass the first external heat transfer gas through one of the coils in the heat exchange method of Misage et al, the motivation being to recover additional energy.

5. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.

Nussbaum, Maruyama, Dietzsch, Taylor et al, and Wood are cited to show multiple path heat exchangers.

Hapgood and Hiersch are cited to show heat exchangers having an additional heat recovery section.
